

Unakite Jasper

Unakite Jasper is a unique, multi-colored stone known for its distinctive blend of green, pink, and peach hues. This semi-precious gemstone is prized for its aesthetic appeal and believed metaphysical properties, including emotional healing and spiritual growth.

Fun Facts:

Color: Unakite Jasper typically features a mottled combination of green (epidote), pink (feldspar), and sometimes clear quartz. The vibrant colors make it a visually striking gemstone.

Origin: The stone was first discovered in the Unakas Mountains of North Carolina, USA, from which it derives its name. It is also found in other parts of the world, including South Africa, Brazil, and China.

Composition: Unakite is a type of altered granite composed mainly of pink orthoclase feldspar, green epidote, and colorless quartz.

Healing Properties: Unakite Jasper is believed to promote emotional balance, helping to release negative emotions and foster feelings of compassion and understanding. It is often used in crystal healing to aid in recovery from trauma.

Chakra Association: This stone is commonly associated with the Heart Chakra, supporting emotional well-being and love. It is thought to help in opening this chakra to unconditional love and empathy.

Grounding and Centering: Unakite Jasper is said to provide grounding and centering energies, making it a popular choice for meditation and mindfulness practices.

Fertility and Pregnancy: Some believe that Unakite Jasper can enhance fertility and support healthy pregnancies, making it a cherished stone for those trying to conceive or expecting mothers.

Metaphysical Uses: Beyond emotional healing, Unakite is also considered a stone of vision, assisting in spiritual growth and insight. It is often used in practices aiming to enhance psychic abilities and intuition.

Physical Healing: It is believed that Unakite Jasper can aid in the recovery from illness and help the body's detoxification processes. It is also said to support the health of the reproductive and circulatory systems.

Durability: With a Mohs hardness rating of 6-7, Unakite Jasper is relatively durable and suitable for various types of jewelry, including rings, pendants, and bracelets.